where RIVER meets the SKY
Vertical plywood construction with benches to fit inside the form of the structure creating intimate and social spaces. The vertical slat structure creates a play of light and image for the public.

After Redux the project will be dismantled and distributed to local parks and schools to help create more social context throughout the city.
where RIVER meets the SKY

Construction Detail - Vertical Plywood